Automation technology in the packaging industry

The packaging industry is experiencing ever shorter innovation cycles and increasing pressure from the competition. Customers are demanding more flexible machines, so that production can be switched to other products or packaging at short notice.

When innovations follow in quick succession, a flexible, easily structured safety solution is required. As a leading worldwide company for safe automation, Pilz has years of experience in the packaging industry, in conjunction with both machine manufacturers and machine operators. The fruits of such co-operation are safety solutions which are highly flexible and yet easy to apply.
